1.0 Overview

The Maryland Longitudinal Data System (MLDS) is a data warehouse that blends select k12, higher education, and work force student data to analyze Maryland student trends in career and college readiness. This document meets state legislative requirements to make available to the Maryland State Longitudinal Data Governance Board, and the general public, information about the contents of the MLDS database.

2.0 Scope, Limitations, and Updates

The scope of the data in the MLDS data warehouse is limited by the policy questions it is designed to answer. The inventory will be updated as new data sets that answer additional policy questions are added to the data warehouse. The database contains both aggregate data sets and de-identified, encrypted student and work force data. Data associated with an individual is not available for viewing in the MLDS database and work force related data is only retained for five years after an individual leaves school. Computed fields that are displayed on reports or in business analytics are not included in the data inventory.

The MLDS data warehouse data inventory document is maintained manually. A PDF version of his document will be maintained for public distribution and will be made available on the MLDS portal. The data inventory is also available as an online lookup system. The online lookup system also provides a data element definition download capability. The online data inventory is described in Section 4.

3.0 How to Use the MLDS Data Inventory

This data inventory can help the reader understand how the data warehouse data is organized, and lists the specific data elements it contains. This information is useful for planning research, defining informational reports, or planning various trend analyses.

In addition to looking up data elements in the data warehouse, this document shows how data elements are conceptually grouped into data domains and data entities. All data elements are grouped into CEDS various data entities that show how a group of data elements relate to a single concept such as student, school, or teacher. Data entities are then grouped into CEDS data domains such as early childhood, secondary education, or higher education.

Appendix B lists the data domains and data entities used to describe and group data elements in the MLDS data warehouse. Appendix C lists the MLDS entities and associated data elements with their definitions in the current MLDS database.

The online data inventory lists over 500 educational terms and definitions related to the state longitudinal data system, CEDS, and IPEDS data standards.

4.0 Data Contained in the Inventory

Version 1 of the database, as described in this document, contains those data sets that answer the following policy questions;

- Policy Question 2: What percentage of Maryland high school exiters go on to be enrolled in Maryland postsecondary education?
- Policy Question 3: What percentage of Maryland high school exiters entering college are assessed to need to take developmental courses and in what areas?
- Policy Question 11: Which 4-year institutions are graduating students most effectively and in the timeliest fashion?

As new data sets are added to the data warehouse to answer additional policy questions, this section will be updated.

The inventory may contain the following data for each data element;

- Domain
- Entity
- Agency/System Owner
- Data Standard
- Application
- Term Description
- Data Type
- Format
- Metric Description

- Technical Name
- Computed Field Flag
- Term Encryption Flag
- Term Masking Flag
- Usage Notes
- Disaggregation Rules
- Record Status
- Policy Question Flags

5.0 Data Naming Standards and Data Security

For security reasons, the native database data element names in the MLDS database are not listed in the inventory. Instead, the native database element names are mapped to the U.S Department of Education's Common Education Data Standard (CEDS) which is used as an alternative naming standard for the reader. Where CEDS does not provide a data element name for the native database element, other standards such as IPEDS, NCES Online Handbook, or the National Education Data Model are used. If no data naming standard is available to map to, the native data element name in the database is listed for the reader. Authorized researchers and policy analysts are able to view all database tables, schemas, and data element column names with the exception of the individual ID and personal information crosswalk tables.

6.0 MLDS Online Data Inventory

Version 1 of the MLDS Online Data Inventory is password protected on the MLDS portal. The secure data entry form allows the data administrator to enter data elements from the MLDS database with a variety of its descriptors such and its entity, domain, definition, security level, application it is associated with and the standardized data name. The system will also support batch data loads of data elements. The online lookup system enables users to view the data elements in the database in a variety of ways, and allows users to download either a portion or the entire data inventory as a PDF file or a Microsoft Excel file.

Page 4 of 41 Version 1 9/1/12

Information on accessing and using the online data inventory dashboard is posted on the secure MLDS portal. Screen images of the inventory data entry and online lookup interfaces are shown in Appendix A.
